A LOCAL GUIDE TO RESOURCES AND HEALING

For Families Affected By Suicide

TASK FORCE
Hold on. Persuade. Empower.

YOU ARE NOT ALONE

Each year in the US, 3 million people lose a family member to suicide. These survivors of suicide loss are trying to cope with the grief and heart-wrenching emotions surrounding this loss, just like you.

Powerful emotions are often a part of the grief process for survivors of suicide loss. For example:

- SHOCK Disbelief, disorientation or emotional numbness
- ANGER Towards your loved one, yourself, or others
- GUILT You might replay “what if” and “if only” scenarios in your mind
- DESPAIR/DEPRESSION Including sadness, loneliness or helplessness. You might have disturbed sleep or appetite, or even consider suicide yourself.
- RELIEF Especially if the suicide followed a long period of suffering or mental illness

You might continue to experience intense reactions during the weeks and months after your loved one's suicide — including nightmares, flashbacks, difficulty concentrating, social withdrawal and loss of interest in usual activities — especially if you witnessed or discovered the suicide. The aftermath of a loved one's suicide can be physically and emotionally exhausting. As you work through your grief, be careful to protect your own well-being.

AFTER A LOSS

KEEP IN TOUCH. Reach out to loved ones, friends and spiritual leaders for comfort, understanding and healing. Surround yourself with people who are willing to listen when you need to talk, as well as those who'll simply offer a shoulder to lean on when you'd rather be silent.

GRIEVE IN YOUR OWN WAY. Do what's right for you, not necessarily someone else. If you find it too painful to visit your loved one's gravesite or share the details of your loved one's death, wait until you're ready.

BE PREPARED FOR PAINFUL REMINDERS.

Anniversaries, holidays and other special occasions can be painful reminders of your loved one's suicide. Don't chide yourself for being sad or mournful. Instead, consider changing or suspending family traditions that are too painful to continue.

DON'T RUSH YOURSELF. Losing someone to suicide is a tremendous blow, and healing must occur at its own pace. Don't be hurried by anyone else's expectations that it's been “long enough.”

EXPECT SETBACKS. Some days will be better than others, even years after the suicide — and that's okay. Healing doesn't often happen in a straight line.

CONSIDER A SUPPORT GROUP FOR FAMILIES

AFFECTED BY SUICIDE. Sharing your story with others who are experiencing the same type of grief might help you find a sense of purpose or strength (Adapted from Mayo Clinic Staff, 2014.) There are community agencies and online support available for you and your loved one (See resource section).

AFTER AN ATTEMPT

CONSIDER CREATING A SAFETY PLAN WITH YOUR LOVED ONE. Safety Plans help individuals prevent and prepare for a suicidal crisis by writing down the following information:

- “TRIGGERS,” of suicidal thoughts, and warning signs
- COPING STRATEGIES that can be done when alone
- DISTRACTIONS including people and social settings
- INDIVIDUALS and professionals that can be called for help
- PRECAUTIONS to make the environment safe
- THE ONE THING that is most important to live for: be it a person, responsibility, value, or goal.

(Safety plan link and app are included in resource section)

REMOVE ACCESS TO LETHAL MEANS.

During a suicidal crisis, it is extremely important to create a safe environment at home.

If at all possible, remove all firearms and bullets from the home by asking a friend or relative to temporarily store them. Police stations, storage facilities, or gun retailers will often provide storage as well. If that is impossible, take extra safety precautions by changing the combination to your safe, storing the bullets separately, etc.

It is also important to reduce access to alcohol, illicit drugs, painkillers, or prescription medications. Keep only small amounts if necessary or keep them in a locked container.

DO YOUR BEST TO AVOID LEAVING THE PERSON ALONE UNTIL THE CRISIS HAS PASSED.

IF THEY ARE THREATENING or making plans for another attempt, take them immediately to a psychiatric facility or emergency room.
